

The Greenhouse of Azkaban

An allotment in my simple eyes consists of three things: a shed, a greenhouse and a garden in that order!

What would my new allotment have for the second most important item on my list, Oh Dear! even worse than the Shed from Hell!

Seemingly this had been a functioning greenhouse until the neighbours got new fences and the workmen dumped all the rubbish in the greenhouse smashing all the panes of glass at the back of the greenhouse and the working area, heartless vandalism!

Your mission Jim, should you decide to accept it ... See if it can be repaired or just knock it down, or just let nature finish it off? A pane of a dilemma.

I started to clear the outside, it seems to have greenhouse like shape after all!

Some panes still have W clips holding them in.

Skylight still functions.

I cleared a lot of rubbish away. There are some potted plants proving it was a greenhouse in a former (happier) life.

It has a wooden floor once half a ton of broken glass was cleared off it!

No glass at all at the back.

To be continued ... in the next exciting instalment of The Greenhouse of Azkaban.
